HAMPL Drawing Out 16_ 30ml

HOMEOPATHIC MEDICINES applications

Domestic Pets and Animals

One dose is: LIQUID: pat on 2 to 4 (enough to reach skin) placed on back of shoulder blades.

PILLS: crush or whole 1-2 pills & sit in gum of mouth to dissolve in saliva Or add a pill to ¼ cup of filtered water stir and oral syringe 1ml as one dose for all species. Repeat using same mixture until run out and remake another liquid mix. REFER TO BOTTLE LABEL AS TO SUGGESTED FREQUENCY (REPEATS) EACH DAY.

FARM or WILDLIFE or FERAL PETS, BIRDS – stir a dose in water and in meals.

As often a pet needs help drawing out underlying bacterial infection in the gums/ teeth / plaque build up. This remedy will stop or prevent infection spreading.

Dosing three times a day (or more) is good, but if it is making them feel more lethargic, which may happen to some pets, so to make them more comfortable, you could go back to twice a day see if that is better for them. It just may take longer to rid any deep infection or pus but that is okay anyways, as long as they are comfortable and still eating etc.

The remedy is working hard to draw up any infection that needs to come out (that maynot be visible to the eye as well), and then once the pus and infection work it way up out of body, relief, and energy is seen. As they feel much much better-getting infection out of the body

Drawing Out homeopathic formula) in conjunction with other natural treatments.

As this remedy is given frequently to start the infection draining from mouth-often it will look bloody trickle but this is what you want. Once drainage starts, you can reduce if you like back to a dose twice a day to keep it going. Some older pets need this remedy ongoing – add to water, milk drinks and daily meals.

With older pets

it seems very helpful to continue the Drawing out formula on going casual basis so there is not build up of infection in gums. Keeps infection from spreading and health gums. What we do is put the drops in food or if you feline is drinking water, we stir in a dose every time we change water or add it to the water trough or bowl or birth bath, fish pond were ever your cat drinks from. Top up a dose every couple of weeks or so.

It is so good and effective for underlying pus-infection. (which is not visible to the eye) Many times Infection-pus can be underlying in the gum, chin or side of face –when teeth, plaque become an issue. Seen mostly as they get older. Using the drawing out has saved many pets (including my own) from surgery or any other drug intervention. With no fuss or trauma.

IMPORTANT: It is also very important to change over to a home prepared natural raw food diet. This will prevent re occurring gum and teeth infections as well as organ damages (ie kidney damage and bladder infections, crystals etc) and other CHRONIC ill health and diseases.

OTHER HELPFUL INFORMATION for Canines in particular (we see this extra help needed in a older dog) What we have found very helpful for bad cases of oral infections and older pets is to also use in conjunction with the homeopathic formulas is the oral mouth rinse.

Optional for Canines

Oral MOUTH herbal healing Rinse

(AN277) HAMPL Oral Mouth Rinse 30ml liquid

(contains calendula, oak bark, plantain herbal)

INSTRUCTIONS : Find a empty clean spray bottle, adding 20 drops of the calendula herb liquid (or HAMPL Oral Mouth Rinse blend) and fill the rest with filtered water using about 100ml ratio of water ~ shake ~ then check the spray nozzle so it does a fine mist spray, then gently spray several squirts around pets gums (no need to open pets mouths) just lift the gum up a little with your fingers. Repeat once or twice a day. ... If mouth is very smelly, continue spraying for a few weeks, then once no more smell, you can stop.

Repeat anytime and as long as needed to get results. Continue with the homeopathic formulas as well. Use an Oral (Mouth) Rinse with Herbal extract. What we have found very helpful for bad cases of oral infections and older pets is to also use the oral mouth rinse in conjunction with the homeopathic formulas. The oral herbal healing rinse is easy to dilute ready for use by adding some herbal drops to a spray bottle of filtered water and spraying gums once to twice a day. Or buy Calendula tea or dry herbs and steam over a pot of boiling water for 10 minutes then let liquid cool and add a tablespoon to a cup of water and oral spray gums three times a day.

Eye - Tear duct gland (overflowing) or - swelling of the lachrymal (blockages).

Tooth - mouth Infections, salivary gland blockage (abscess)

Sometimes there is a notable bad breath from tooth or gum infection, swelling under the jaw or under the tongue of salivary gland blocked (abscess-cyst).

Example: Salivary Cyst In an affected animal, we see the salivary cysts in either of two (2) places.

Typically, a large pocket of saliva will form under the jaw at the base of the neck. It will initially be on the same side as the injured duct, but after a brief period, the cyst can become so large that it fills the entire area below the jaw. It feels like a thick-walled balloon filled with honey. The animal is able to breathe, eat, and drink in a normal fashion. Swallowing rarely seems to be impaired. The other area where cysts are found is within the mouth, under the tongue. They are referred to as a 'ranula' in this location. These cysts often will cause problems with eating and drinking. They may limit normal movement of the tongue during drinking or get in the way when food is being chewed.

Or any other morbid matter in the body.

From toes, ear canal, tooth abscess, boils, draining fissures, leg ulcers, carbuncles, Pasteurella, Infected wound, Nocardia infection, mucus in the sinus, tonsils, ears, uterus or rectum, interdigital furunculosis (cysts) between your dog's toes, salivary cysts (blocked). Sometimes the situation has been a long-standing one or even gangrene wounds. This remedy will sort all these conditions - without the need for surgical intervention, it will also stop infection spreading.

EQUINE CATTLE CAMEL BUFFALO

Corynebacterium pseudotuberculosis is a bacterial infection affecting horses and other species of animals such as cattle, goats, sheep, camels, and buffalo.

GOAT, SHEEP

Cheesy Gland (Corynebacterium pseudotuberculosis) abscesses in goats and sheep.

SKIN and BONE conditions:

Skin - there is also a condition called Deep Pyoderma (pus under the skin).

Bone - some pets or animals are needing an effective treatment for "bone Infection" called "Osteomyelitis". Here we use the HAMPL Draw Out 16 formula in conjunction with the HAMPL Bone Correction 87 formula.

Use both to also prevention bone infections anywhere in the body.

Older animal and pets (cats in particular)

Often we find if your pet is middle age or over the (eg age of 6 years) we need to use a general maintenance detox. As chronic or acute conditions can appear like ears, teeth-gum infections, or sinus pus etc.

We can use the homeopathic HAMPL DrawOut 16 formula in conjunction with the treatments sets for things like;

Sinus infection

Anal Gland - infection or blockages

Gingivitis - gum disease

Ear Infections - pus, infected wounds, any type of infected wounds or cuts and a serious gangrene wound, any acute or chronic tooth infection.

Eye Tear Duct Gland - swelling of the lachrymal or blockage.

Infections

commonly found in wounds is Pasteurella Infection. P. multocida is one of the most frequent pathogens in infected skin wounds and subcutaneous abscesses. We have also added the Pasteurella multocida nosode 12X, 30X, 10M treatment in homeopathic HAMPL DrawOut 16 formula.

Example: a number of pets have been tested positive to Pasteurella is a gram-negative bacteria. Pasteurella multocida found in the mouths of approximately 75-80% of all cats. Cats with tartar build up and gingival disease have a higher rate of infection than cats with clean teeth. Symptoms are usually a swelling and local infection around the wound, which may lead to an abscess. More serious systemic symptoms can include sinusitis, pneumonia and brain abscess. But we can use this as a prevention of the above conditions. And it works really well. E.g. just stir in several drops or pills to water dish every time you change or add to water trough once a month.

The majority of "inflammatory diseases" start in your gut.

Probiotic e.g Nexabiotic Capsules (by Bioprosper Labs) The specific strains in of probiotics that are listed in the "Nexabiotic" contain supportive strains" such as Lactobacillus acidophilus, Casei and Plantarum, Streptococcus thermophilus, and Bifobacterium longum can also be extremely beneficial.

PET DOSAGE: Add a pinch in meals for cats, a toy dog, and other small animals. Half powder from the capsule for small to med canines and a full cap of powder for large canines. For 2 months treatment. (It takes 2 months to restore gut flora to maintain a pet strong immune to infections)
